Dear Minnesota Legislators,

I am writing regarding the constitutional amendment HF874. There is no need to change the state constitution for improvement of the public school systems. Processes are in place to work through the local and state levels to achieve the desired change in public schools. I am concerned that the vague language of the amendment could be misconstrued to deny my rights as a parent to choose the best education for my children, whether that is public, private, or home education. As the parent, I know my children best and should have the legal authority to make educational choices that are in their best interest.

I strongly oppose HR874. I thank you, as legislators, for protecting the freedoms of those whose voices you represent.

Sincerely,

Jenny G.
