

Chapter 42

2019 Regular Session

Subject Community emergency medical technicians; community paramedics

Analyst Elisabeth Klarqvist

Date May 20, 2019

Overview

This act changes an occupational title from “community medical response emergency medical technician” to “community emergency medical technician.” It also expands the types of emergency units for which community emergency medical technicians may provide services, allowing them to be members of a basic life support ambulance service or a medical response unit. (Under current law, these personnel are authorized to be members of a medical response unit, not a basic life support ambulance service. A medical response unit is organized by a local political subdivision and provides initial medical care before an ambulance service arrives.) It also provides for medical assistance coverage of services provided by a community paramedic and delivered via telemedicine.

Summary

Section	Description
1	Community emergency medical technician. Amends § 144E.001, subd. 5h. Amends the definition of community emergency medical technician (CEMT), by changing the CEMT’s occupational title and allowing a CEMT to be a member of a basic life support ambulance service.
