Overview

This bill requires individuals convicted of certain crimes to provide a biological specimen for DNA analysis. Currently, only sex offenders must provide a specimen for DNA analysis.

1 Upon sentencing. Current law requires a court to order an adult offender to provide a biological specimen for DNA analysis when the court sentences a person charged with violating or attempting to violate certain sex crimes or an offense arising out of the same set of circumstances. Currently, juveniles who are adjudicated for these offenses also must provide a specimen.

This bill requires adults and juveniles to provide the biological specimen when sentenced or adjudicated delinquent for:
- murder under section 609.185, 609.19, or 609.195;
- manslaughter under section 609.20 or 609.205;
- assault under section 609.221, 609.222, or 609.223;
- robbery under section 609.24 or aggravated robbery under 609.245;
- kidnapping under section 609.25;
- false imprisonment under section 609.255;
- criminal sexual conduct under section 609.342, 609.343, 609.344, or 609.345;
- incest under section 609.365;
- burglary under section 609.582, subdivision 1; or
- indecent exposure under section 617.23, subdivision 3, clause 2.

2 Before release. Makes the same changes as in section 1 for offenders who are required to provide the biological specimen before release from incarceration. This provision applies to individuals who were incarcerated before the law required submission of the sample at the time of sentencing. This provision also ensures that, if for some other reason, an offender does not provide the sample at the time of sentencing, the sample is provided before the offender is released. Also makes technical changes to make the section easier to read.

3 Instruction to revisor. Instructs the revisor to renumber the statute requiring offenders to submit a biological specimen for DNA analysis to move it from section 609.3461, the sex crimes section of the criminal code, to section 609.117, the sentencing section of the criminal code.

4 Effective date. July 1, 2000, for offenders sentenced or released on or after that date.
