Overview

School boards have authority to levy for certain capital purposes. One program, called the Long-Term Facilities Maintenance (LTFM) Revenue Program, allows school districts to levy for deferred maintenance and building health and safety needs. For many districts, the revenue is capped at a per pupil amount, but for larger districts that were formerly included in the alternative facilities program, including Duluth, the revenue is sufficient to cover any necessary deferred maintenance project.

H.F. 3992 authorizes the Duluth school district to do three things:

- 1) sell the Historic Old Central High School;
- 2) construct and remodel new spaces for the district, including for the programs housed at Historic Old Central High School, demolish the 1971 Duluth Central High School building, and build a bus garage and bus maintenance facility; and
- 3) redirect a portion of the estimated levy savings that would have been necessary to make the payments for the deferred maintenance improvements at the Historic Old Central High School toward repaying school board-approved general obligation bonds that would be sold to underwrite the construction and remodeling activities listed above.
