

Graduated Driver Licensing (GDL) Summary

August 2019

Minnesota, like almost all other states, licenses new drivers in a graduated driver licensing (GDL) system that limits some aspects of driving privileges until the driver gains experience.

The GDL system is basically divided into three stages: (1) instruction (or learner's) permit, which always requires the presence of a licensed driver; (2) provisional licensure, which is an intermediate stage for youth drivers that allows unsupervised driving but carries various limitations (particularly on passengers, nighttime driving, and use of electronic devices); and (3) full licensure. There is also a less common farm work license for farm-related driving situations (as well as a medical license, which is not discussed in this summary).

The table below outlines requirements in each GDL stage. It identifies the prerequisites for initial issuance of each permit or license, driver accompaniment requirements, and restrictions that apply when operating a vehicle. The table does not address scenarios for license renewal, reinstatement of lost driving privileges, previous licensing in another state, enhanced licenses, or endorsements and commercial licenses. It also does not include public safety prerequisites generally applicable to all potential drivers.<sup>1</sup>
